City of Rome Sails with a Mystery in Body Found on Tracks. Batch of Prisoners of War. Humor and pathos were blended at the Auchor Line pier yesterday noon, when the City of Rome, with ninety-five Spanish prisoners of war-prisoners no longer—backed out into the stream and hours.

backed out into the stream and began the Frances Neglia, nine years old, who lives at No. trip to Portsmouth, N. H., there to take 232 Elizabeth street, fell to the parement yester on more than 1,300 of the men of Cervera's day morning through the fire escape on the fourth floor of the building her skull was fractured and her left arm broken. She will probably recover.

lost fleet.
"Adlos!" rang out from the swarthy men ranged along the port rail as the steamer hegan to move, and "Adios!" came the response from the fuithful little band of watchers on the pier head. Then came shouled regrets from the departing tars expressed in sarcastic terms, interspersed with shouls of laughter from their mates or the persons addressed on the wherf.

or the persons addressed on the whart.

Well back on the promenade deek were AND EVERYBODY LAUGHS egis, and on them were convalescing wounded Spanlards, some without legs, others with empty sleeves. Others still or Cervera's officers, their faces blackened with ineffacable powder marks, reclined in steamer chairs. There were no smiles on the faces of these.

Some of the more desperately wounded re below, and a few may find graves be-were below, and a few may find graves beneath the waves before even Portsmouth is reached, for they are very weak. Dr.

Gomea, the surgeon in charge, said the patients were comfortable.

On the way down the bay not a single salute greeted the Rome. Harbor craft gave her a wide berth, as if the huge craft was a something to be shunned. Not once did the Rome's great baritoue whistle sound as she turned into the deeper channel that leads past the statue of Liberty; and off that point she met and passed the transport Mississippi bringing back the victorious American troops from Porto Rico.
Cheers rent the sir from the gladsoms men on the Mississippi, and steam craft of all sorts screamed welcome to her as they passed.

On the Rome silence reigned as the Non-

Maria Teresa, leaned pensively on the aword that was returned to him by Captain Chadwick, of the New York, and Lieutenant Viela, of the Pluton, stood near him. The laughter which rang out at the pier was hushed, and tears trickled down the checks of some of the watching Spaniards as the Mississippi swung into the North River, and the City of Rome, gathering speed, steamed rapidly toward the Narrows and the open sea.

The body of Charles H. Fahnstock was found on the tracks of the New Haven Rallroad at Hunt's Point late Friday night by a track walker. The position of the body
